

SCTE/ISBE Commenting and Posting Policy

SCTE/ISBE encourages comments and opinions from visitors of SCTE/ISBE online properties, including all related websites and social media communities. On SCTE/ISBE-managed social media communities any comments that violate SCTE/ISBE policy will be removed after they are posted.

Constructive criticism and healthy debate are welcome, as long as they remain on-topic, are appropriate in nature, and are beneficial to other readers. Relevant comments may be posted, but comments that are inappropriate will be removed from the SCTE/ISBE website, affiliated sites, and associated social media groups. Examples of such comments are:

- Advertisements, promotions or solicitations (including posts SCTE/ISBE feels are SPAM)
- Language that is degrading based on gender, race, religion, ethnicity, sexual orientation, nationality or disability; profanity and obscenity, including sexually explicit language; and threatening, harassing, defamatory or libelous material and language
- Material that infringes the copyrights, trademarks or other intellectual property of any party
- Information that violates someone's reasonable expectation of privacy
- Information you know to be confidential, sensitive or otherwise unlawful
- Impersonation of anyone else
- Intentionally false or misleading statements including, but not limited to, fake positive reviews, fake negative reviews of competitors or bogus blog postings
- Uses of the name or likeness of a third party for commercial purposes
- Comments that are irrelevant to the nature of the article or discussion thread.

All comments are the property of the SCTE/ISBE and may be used, at its discretion, by SCTE/ISBE for promotional or educational purposes. SCTE/ISBE will not knowingly post content to an associated social media group that violates any rule or policy of that site, i.e., Facebook policies. Nevertheless, SCTE/ISBE is not responsible for any actions resulting from the posting of a reader-submitted comment either on its websites or social media accounts.

SCTE/ISBE's employment of SCTE/ISBE-owned trademarks in conjunction with your comment or posting does not grant you any rights in or to SCTE/ISBE's intellectual property.
